The tablet, to be presented to Cheltenham Township by Abington Meeting, during the latter's 250th anniversary celebration today, is fittingly inscribed. The tablet, which will be unveiled at two p. m., at the Richard Wall House, will be presented by Horace Mather Lippincott, a member of the meeting, whose ancestor was Richard Wall, Ralph Morgan, member of the board of Township Commissioners of Cheltenham, will accept the tablet on behalf of the Township, after which Judge Harold C. Knight, Montgomery County, will speak.

The inscription on the memorial tablet is as follows:

"The first religious meeting here about now known as Abington Meeting of the Society of Friends (Quakers) was held here in 1683. This was the home of Richard and Joan Wall, who came from Hasfield near Cheltenham, England, in 1682. Their granddaughter, Sarah Wall, married in 1694 George Shoemaker, from Kriegsheim, Germany, for whose family this vicinity was called Shoemakerstown later Ogontz, now Elkins Park."

Turn Clocks Back Tonight

Daylight saving will end tonight. Residents of the section, who have been enjoying daylight saving time for the last five months, are reminded to turn their clocks back one hour.

It is suggested that to set the clocks right they be advanced 11 hours, thus no harm being done to the mechanism.

McGrady Will Mediate In Strike of Truck Drivers

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—(INS)—Edward F. McGrady, who settled the first bloody western Pennsylvania coal strike recently, was to arrive here today to mediate the strike of truck drivers that has tied up between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000 in merchandise and perishables and thrown 12,000 men out of work.

McGrady was dispatched here by Sen. Robert F. Wagner, of New York, chairman of the Labor Advisory board of the NRA, in response to an urgent plea from George W. Elliott, secretary of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

Elliott advised Senator Wagner that Charles D. Barnes, Federal mediator, had been unable to compromise the walkout and that Philadelphia merchants and manufacturers were preparing to seek a court injunction against the newly formed Brotherhood of Transportation Workers. He told Senator Wagner that thousands of dollars worth of orders held by Philadelphia concerns had been cancelled since inception of the strike which paralyzed transportation.

More than 100 members of the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association, comprised of truck operators, held a lengthy meeting but declined to comment. They continued to refuse recognition to the new union formed by Frank P. McGlone but McGlone said 60 operators had already recognized the union which is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Minor disorders were reported in various sections of the city as the striking drivers halted trucks and attempted to recruit new members for their ranks.

Official Count, Primary Election, Is Completed

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 23.—The official count in the recent primary election was completed last night. District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn received 11,884, on the Republican ticket, and Webster S. Achey, on the Democratic ticket, received 2,718; Prothonotary, Wiggins, Republican, 10,805; Erdan, Democrat, 2672. Achey received 19 votes on the Republican ticket and Eastburn received 14 votes on the Democratic ticket.

Director of the Poor, Republican, Rev. Vincent W. Lindes, 10,832; Thomas J. Brennan, Democrat, 2645.

Jury Commissioner, Dr. Wm. C. LeCompte, Republican, 10,954; Kenwood S. Ahlum, Democrat, 2623.

In Bristol in the first ward, first precinct, no Democratic votes were cast and only one cast in the second precinct of that ward. Three Democratic votes were cast in the second ward.

FOURTH WARD MEETING

An open-meeting for residents of the fourth ward will occur Monday evening at eight, in A. O. H. hall, at which time arrangements will be made for the ward's participation in the NRA parade Wednesday, October 4th. All residents of that ward are urged to attend.

Account of Trip Abroad Is Told By Miss M. Smith

Following the rehearsal of the Bristol Presbyterian choir last evening, which was the first of the Fall season, a most interesting talk was given to the members by Miss Marian B. Smith on her trip abroad, from which Miss Smith and her mother, Mrs. Caroline T. Smith, returned on Labor Day.

Several gifts which Miss Smith purchased in Spain were shown, included in which were three exquisite Spanish shawls, and several lace handkerchiefs, all made by hand.

Miss Smith told of the beautiful sight which they beheld upon arriving at Gibraltar, where they landed. The Rock of Gibraltar was greatly illuminated, "the sun was rising in the east and the moon setting in the west, which indeed made a glorious sight," she told.

After touring several cities in Spain, including Madrid, Barcelona and Seville, Miss Smith and her mother went to Paris, thence to London, from where they sailed for home.

NIGHT CLUB HELD UP

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—Four masked bandits early today held up a night club, herded the 60 patrons against the wall, slugged the cashier and escaped with $29 in the cash register, overlooking a large sum of money in the office safe. Patrons, for several minutes, believed the hold-up was "part of the show" and refused to regard the gunmen's demands seriously. One of the bandits fired his revolver several times to convince them.

COAL MINERS TO MOBILIZE

Pittsburgh, Sept. 23.—Determined to halt the flow of West Virginia coal into a market they have crippled, striking miners of the western Pennsylvania bituminous area early today were reported planning to mobilize in Green County for an "invasion" of the West Virginia field. West Virginia authorities were reported ready to repel any such march. The purpose of the invasion, should it be attempted, would be to persuade West Virginia coal workers to drop their tools pending union recognition, thus damming at its source, the importation of coal into this industrial region. Operations in the Western Pennsylvania area have been brought to a standstill as a result of the miners' "holiday" affecting between 50,000 and 60,000 miners.

INVESTIGATE CRASH

BRISTOL MAN PUT ON PROBATION FOR YEAR

Clifford Spencer Also Given
Suspended Prison
Sentence

HIT OFFICER IN MOUTH

A Bristol colored man who took a poke at a Bristol police officer was placed on probation yesterday by Judge Hiram Keller with Chief of Police Linford Jones as the probation officer.

Clifford Spencer, 27, Bristol, entered a plea of guilty to charge of resisting an officer and assault and battery.

Ross Phillips, Bristol police officer, testified that on the night of September 2nd, he found Spencer drunk in a gutter and in putting the defendant in the police car, Spencer poked him in the mouth. Phillips said that he had never had any trouble with Spencer before.

Spencer told Judge Keller that he had been drinking wine and beer and was so drunk that he does not remember what happened.

"You are pretty well sobered now and I'll suspend a prison sentence of 30 days, and place you on probation for a year," Judge Keller said. Spencer has been in the county prison since his arrest on September 2nd.

Schedule Another Hearing In Phila. Milk Situation

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—(INS)—Another public hearing into the controversial Philadelphia milk situation will be held here next week, probably on Friday, by the state legislative committee named at the last assembly session to investigate the question. It was announced today by Sen. Clarence J. Buckman, of Bucks county, the chairman.

Meanwhile, Robert F. Brinton, a Chester county farmer, resigned his post as treasurer and director of the Interstate Milk Producers' Association because of criticism from farmers who asserted he allowed large distributors to import huge quantities of cheap milk from other states in his official capacity as chief of the state milk control board.

Senator Buckman announced a conference of attorneys representing farmers, distributors, and other interested parties will be held Monday prior to the legislative hearing to map a course for action. He said the hearing will be held primarily to develop legislation for presentation to the coming session of the legislature.

YOUTHFUL ROBBER GANG ROUNDED UP BY POLICE

Four Taken Into Custody And Held for Further Hearing

ADMIT TO MANY JOBS

Three youths ranging in age from 14 to 15 years fell into the hands of the police here, yesterday, on suspicion of having committed a number of petty robberies. After questioning by the police the boys admitted numerous theft and involved a man 21 years of age who admits having purchased automobile tires from the youths.

Those taken into custody were: James Manzo, 15, 715 Fifth avenue. Arnold Conover, 15, 689 Garden street.

Louis Paul, 21, Pine street.

Rosario Caro, 14, 512 Pond street.

All of the youths were given a hearing last night before Justice of Peace James Guy and held in $500 bail each for a further hearing Wednesday night.

Paul was found to have 10 or a dozen tires but only three of them he admits purchasing from the youthful robbers.

Manzo and Caro, after being questioned by the police, admitted they forced an entrance into the T. B. Harkins Foundry where on the occasion of their first visit they stole a typewriter. On their second visit they found nothing of value so they destroyed or ruined records, which they scattered from one end of the foundry to the other.

This same pair also confessed to having entered and robbed the store of Joseph Farruggio, Manxion street, on two occasions; also the restaurant of Mancuso on the Bristol Pike, south of Mill street, where they stole cigarettes and took 13 cents in cash.

They, when confronted with other evidence, also told the police they on two different occasions broke into the Grand Theatre and stole candy from a vending machine.

A number of automobiles were also robbed of their spare tires which were sold to Paul for from 50 cents to $1 each. A number of the tires have been recovered by the police.

Conover and Caro confessed to taking the automobile of John Mulholland, Bath Road, from in front of his brother's residence on Farragut avenue. This machine was recovered in Dublin Township. The car was located by the police of Ambler who found it ditched along the roadside.

Manzo, Conover and Caro told police, while being detained at headquarters, yesterday that they had robbed automobiles at the Harriman Hospital Lawn Fete in July. They took candy and oranges and other small articles from the cars.

Caro is alleged to have been the leader of the gang and police are of the opinion that others are involved in the series of petty robberies which have been committed here during the past several months. It is expected the police will have completed their investigation before the hearing next Wednesday night.

DECISIONS GIVEN, CASES OF THREE LOCAL RESIDENTS

Marco Mauro Not Guilty On Charge of Intent to Kill

INDELICATOS ARE UP

The Elder Chooses Jail Term to Costs; Nephew on Probation

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 23.—Augustus Indelicato, of Bristol, was found not guilty of aggravated assault and battery, but guilty of assault and battery and was given a 30-day suspended prison sentence, placed on parole for a year and directed to pay the costs of the case.

Nicholas Indelicato, nephew of the above, tried on the same charges as Augustus, was directed to pay the costs, and placed on probation for a year.

The Indelicatos were defendants in a case in which Marco Mauro, also of Bristol, preferred the charges.

Mauro was also a defendant in another case, being charged with carrying a firearm without having a license, which Mauro admitted. He was also charged with assault with intent to kill. He was found not guilty of the charge of assault with intent to kill, but guilty on the charge of carrying a firearm without a license. He was sentenced to pay the costs.

Judge Keller heard all three cases, in one, and sentenced Mauro to pay the costs of the case within three months and placed him on probation for a year.

Augustus Indelicato was very much dissatisfied with the sentence. He wanted to go to jail, and not paying the costs of the case was therefore committed to jail. He stated he would serve out the costs. Indelicato stated he was afraid to go back to Bristol because they would put him "on the spot."

The arrests grew out of an altercation in Bristol on the night of August 26, when Mauro defended his father-in-law, Leo Lasprella, who it was testified, had been drinking. It was testified that Mauro fired two shots into the ground to scare Indelicato and his nephew.

It was brought out in the trial that Augustus Indelicato is living with Mauro's wife.

"That may account for the feud that exists between the two families," Judge Keller said in his charge to the jury. "If you find that Mauro fired two shots in the ground and not directly at the Indelicatos, he could not be convicted of assault with intent to kill."

John L. DuBois, attorney for Mauro, in his address to the jury, described Augustus Indelicato as a "giant with pugilistic tendencies that would make Dempsey and Sharkey look sick."

The criminal record against Augustus Indelicato is as follows:

"July 2, 1927—Suspicion of breaking, entering and larceny; discharged.

"May 26, 1929—Bigamy, held for Court.

"July 6, 1929—Assault and battery; discharged but paid costs.

"June 30, 1933—Aggravated assault and battery; held for court.

"July 3, 1931—Desertion and non-support; charge withdrawn.

"January 16, 1932—Assault and battery on father; discharged.

"May 17, 1932—Aggravated assault and battery and robbery; held for Court.

"June 26, 1932—Aggravated assault and battery; held for Court.

"August 26, 1933—Aggravated assault and battery, pending."

TIME FOR ACTION

Again warning has been given gold hoarders by Washington authorities that prosecution is imminent unless they turn in their metal or comply with the regulations issued by the government.

In behalf of justice, it is to be hoped that the latter is prepared this time to make good its threat. Similar warnings have been issued from time to time in the past since the anti-hoarding restrictions went into effect. They were not followed by action. The generally accepted belief as to the cause of this was that the government was dubious of the constitutionality of the anti-hoarding act and did not want to bring the matter to a head. Prosecution was invited in vain by several hoarders who questioned the validity of the law.

The latest warning is embraced in an executive order which requires hoarders to make written returns of their holdings on specially-prepared forms. A period of 15 days is allowed for these reports to be filed.

Most of the gold at present outstanding is in the hands of large hoarders. The great majority of smaller hoarders in all probability have turned in their holdings, either for patriotic motives or in fear of being prosecuted and because they were unable or unwilling to fight the anti-hoarding act.

To permit the big holders to retain their gold, under these circumstances, would be unfair to the other class. Washington officials must recognize this as well as the fact that continued warnings and threats without action being taken may mean a return to hoarding by individuals of small means.

The existing situation calls for abandonment of the anti-hoarding act or for suitable action to clear up the confusion and uncertainty in which it rests. It is to be hoped that the government is ready to do this without further delay.

ANOTHER "CURE"

Another "cancer cure" has made its appearance, this time in Italy.

Wide publicity is being given to the reported case of a woman to whom had been given less than four years to live but who, after four days' treatment, is near full recovery.

A physician in northern Italy is credited with discovering the treatment, the details of which he declined to reveal to reporters who questioned him. The reason he advanced was that he wished a conclusive demonstration of its value before making it public.

The probability is that this "cure", like many that have preceded it, will prove to be worthless and that cancer victims will have to continue to depend upon present recognized forms of treatment.

Whenever a real cure is developed, and it is not unreasonable to expect this eventually, it will quickly be made available to the world.

If he thinks all ladies either playthings or nuisances, he will be 46 some time next year.

A civilized land is one in which you could live in safety and comfort if it wasn't for mankind.

Bristol Presbyterian Church

"Homecoming" will be the subject of the sermon to be delivered at Bristol Presbyterian Church at the 11 o'clock service of worship, Rev. S. Brooks Knowlton, pastor, will take as his text Psalm 65:6, "God, who brings the lonely home" (Moffatt). At the evening service the subject will be "Our God," and the text John 20:17, "My Father and Your Father, and my God and your God." The Church School will meet at ten a. m., and the Senior Christian Endeavor at 7 p. m.

Rally Day services will be held next Sunday morning at 10.30 o'clock, the church and school uniting in the one service of worship.

Bristol M. E. Church

"Christianity," a quality every earnest Christian should desire to develop, will be the morning subject of the minister, the Rev. Clarence Howell.

"Christ, the light of the world," is the evening subject. The Church School meets at 9.45 a. m. (promptly). Rally Day will be observed in all the services on October 8th. It is earnestly desired that it may mark the largest attendance in the recent history of the church. "If everyone works to that end the goal will be attained," says the pastor.

The Epworth League devotional meeting will be held at 6.45 p. m., Wednesday, 7.45 p. m., prayer and praise service.

New Golf Champion Shows Winning Way

DUNLAP'S STANCE • TOP OF BACK SWING • FINISH OF DRIVE • HIS GRIP

How does he do it? What's his secret? Those are questions Mr. and Mrs. Fan ask when a new star in any sport appears in the sky. Here, George Dunlap, of New York, new national amateur golf champion, shows he has nothing up his sleeve except a pair of sturdy arms. But a glance at the champion's form may be helpful in improving your game. Dunlap illustrates how he gets that desired distance on his drives.

SYNOPSIS

Thomas Jefferson Randolph . . . now a great football prospect at famous Thorndyke University . . . was born of humble parents, Mom and Pop, in a little Middle West factory town where he won early renown as a brilliant high school back, so much so that the great eastern college had lured him to its swanky halls. Tommy came home for Christmas, spent much of the time trying to polish household manners, did not return Easter, but during his summer vacation he caused a most profound sensation throughout critical Athens by flashing on that burg the very latest in sport togs, white knickers, flannels, et al. The neighbors are rather caustic but, as Mom explains it, "if you fly with fine birds you must wear fine feathers" referring to her boy's "millionaire college chums". Tommy golfs during first half of his vacation; then makes himself "as hard as nails" laboring as a truck loader in the glassworks where his father and brother, Pete, work. Tommy still goes with Dorothy Whitney, daughter of the big factory owner but he puzzles Mom by simply calling Dot "a good scout".

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

The word got around town that Thorndyke was going to play State in two years and it caused a lot of excitement because everybody knew about State and was crazy to see Tommy playing with snooty Thorndyke. So there was a lot of talk about it and people began to save up their money even though it was two years away. Mrs. Farrell mentioned the game at the grocery store and hinted that Tommy would get plenty when he came to play State. Mom just laughed and said that Tommy wasn't worried. Then Butcher Brown said:

"That's the one game I'm going to see if I have to close up shop."

And Mom answered what she had heard Tommy tell Pop: "Why don't you go over and see one of Tommy's big games?"

Butcher Brown laughed and looked at Mrs. Farrell and all the other women looked at her and Mrs. Farrell said: "Some people are even getting so important they can high-hat their own state, I see."

It got around town and a lot of the knockers said Tommy was getting too high-toned altogether, making cracks like that; but Mom thought it was pretty cute.

Mom was wiping off the front windows. She had washed them just two days before but a rain had come up and splattered them and the women along the street never missed a thing. The mailman was coming along, poking along as usual, with his black dog, the one that always muddled up a clean porch, trailing back of him. Mom could tell, three or four houses down, whether he had anything for her or not; but with Tommy home it didn't make much difference anyhow; if he had anything in his hand, like as not it was one of the advertisements Pop was always answering about corn cures and How To Cure For The Feet—and she didn't see why he kept on sending for them because none of them did him any good.

The mailman handed her a small envelope. Here's an invitation for the Country Club dance for Tom," he said.

Mom laughed. "How do you know, John?"

John laughed but didn't answer her question. "I wish they'd save them for some day when I haven't got gas cards—and look at these hunky papers." He showed her a stack of folded newspapers printed in a foreign tongue. "Say," he continued, "does the old man get any good out of all them mail order ads he answers for his feet?"

"Not much, I'm afraid."

"Tell him he's not doing me any favor."

Mom wouldn't tell Pop, of course. Poor John didn't mean anything and it would only get Pop started on civil service and the government pension jobs and he'd even threaten to write to Washington to get satisfaction. And that would get Uncle Louie started on how nobody could ever get satisfaction from Washington as long as the Republicans were in there and it would end up in another big row with every woman along the street straining her ears.

But Mom was glad the invitation had come and she sat looking at it, fingering the quality of the paper. It was a sort of actual proof she could hold in her own hands that her Tommy was really doing all these big things and that it wasn't just a nice dream and one of these days she would see him going out to the factory to work, year in and year out, as Mom had always watched Pop and as Pete would always do; although Pete was talking about starting a garage of his own now.

And Pete had a girl—a plain kind of a girl he called Steve or Monkey or anything he thought of, and she called him Doggy because he always liked to have some kind of a dog around although they hadn't had any at the house since Tiger was poisoned by some jealous person in the neighborhood. Mom had her idea but she had never mentioned it to Pop because he swore he would take his hunting shotgun and shoot the one that did it if he ever found out.

Steve was a new girl in town and her father worked at one of the big garages and Steve seemed to know as much about automobiles as Pete. It was a funny way for a young couple to go courting, with their heads always under the hood of a car, but still Mom knew it was a lot better for them to do that than run to dances and do a lot of drinking like she heard some of the young ones were doing. Mom didn't know what the world was coming to, with the girls acting the way they did nowadays; but she was thankful her boys hadn't picked up with any of the fly-by-night running-gates.

She was a little worried at the way Mrs. Johnson's Florrie was throwing herself at Tommy. She was a pert thing, all painted up, and Mom had to admit she was pretty in a bold way. She was a year older than Tommy and should be ashamed of herself; it sat over on her porch and made eyes at him.

Once in a while Tommy went over and talked to her; and one night Mom thought she heard him tell her goodnight kind of late; but he was too smart to get mixed up with a hussy who kept her fellows as late as two or three in the morning, either. She was a disgrace to the neighborhood and Mrs. Johnson had better look after her own before she took to minding other people's children.

Mom hoped Tommy would take Dorothy to this Country Club dance. Something seemed wrong with them lately. Always before Tommy had gone over to Johnson's to use their telephone and Mom knew he was calling up Dorothy because he would always come back home and dress, and later Mom would be apt to see them walking down to the movies or sometimes driving to Smithville where there were bigger shows and parties as well as the country club. Now he didn't seem to be going with Dorothy.

Mom had never had a phone in as they had no use for one with Tommy away; but she began to think up a good excuse to get one so Pop wouldn't complain about wasting money on foolishness although she knew he would be very proud when it was really in. Mom had an idea that it was when Tommy went over to use their phone that Florrie Johnson began to get her clutches on him; and anyhow she didn't want Mrs. Johnson to be knowing all of the family business because once she got hold of a thing it was as good as spread all over town; and it was impolite to go use a person's phone and then walk double so they would know you were trying to keep them from hearing what was going on.

Mom hoped the invitation would be the means of bringing Dorothy and Tommy back together again; that night when he opened it, he read it and went into a kind of a brown study; and pretending that she did not know what was in the envelope, Mom said:

"I saw Dorothy down on Circle Street today."

He spoke quickly. "Did she say anything about me?"

"Well, you see I wasn't talking to her; she just passed the time of day as she went by; but she smiled real nice and looked very pretty."

"Was she with anybody?"

Mom considered. "Well, now, I couldn't just say as to that."

"Do you mean there was a gang with her?"

"Well, there were a lot of young people around."

"Did you see a skinny guy with a little mustache?"

"Well, now, maybe there was one like that."

There hadn't been one like that; but there were times when Mom felt that a little white lie didn't do any harm.

Tommy's jaw whitened a bit under its burn and tightened. Then he dashed out of the house without saying a word and went over to Johnson's; and when he came back he was happy and lighthearted and bounding like a puppy again and said:

"Listen, Mom, want to do something for me? I'll be working and won't have time and they're always closed at night. Tomorrow will you phone Telling's and have them make up a swell corsage for Dot for next Wednesday? I'm taking her to the Club dance."

Then he went hurrying up the stairs and Mom knew he was going to get dressed and have a date with Dorothy. When he went out whistling a half-hour later she was still puzzling about the corsage; and all night it was the same.

Mom wasn't sure just what a corsage was; and she was ashamed to let Tommy know; he had trusted her to get it and she didn't want to fail him and she wanted to get a very nice one for Dorothy, the best there was without costing Tommy too much money. Of course Mom knew it was a bouquet of flowers but she didn't know how big or how much or what kind or anything. It was a kind of custom in town for the boys to trust their mothers to order flowers for their girls at graduation and times like that, which wasn't so hard because Telling's just made up a lot and knew just what was wanted; but a corsage for a Country Club dance was a great responsibility; and Mom didn't want to do like some mothers did and save money for their boys so that the bouquets they bought were too cheap and the girls cried and it got all over town the next day.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

THE newcomers to the market this week are -daho baking potatoes, cranberries, and Canadian rutabagas, those sweet yellow turnips. Several of the summer vegetables still linger though the season is growing short. Cauliflower is a popular vegetable as the weather grows cooler and is quickly prepared. A favorite sauce for this vegetable is Mock Hollandaise, a rich white sauce to which the yolk of an egg and some lemon juice has been added. Onions, sweet and white potatoes are economical and of excellent quality.

The early fall fruits include Concord, Malaga and Tokay grapes, Italian plums and pears. Most of these are good for preserving as well as for eating. Honeydew melons are the best of their family at this season. Small Valencia oranges are economical and are a satisfying addition to fruit gelatins.

Here are the menus from the Quaker Maid Kitchen.

Low Cost Dinner
Smoked Pork Shoulder
Sweet Potatoes Creamed Onions
Bread and Butter
Chocolate Pudding
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Pot Roast of Beef Mashed Potatoes
Creamed Yellow Turnips
Apple and Celery Salad
Bread and Butter

Very Special Dinner
Antipasto
Rolled Roast Beef Browned Potatoes
Cauliflower Hollandaise
Waldorf Salad
Rolls and Butter
Coffee Gelatin with Whipped Cream

SPORTS

ST. ANN'S ELEVEN TO OPEN SEASON OCTOBER 1

After weeks of intensive drilling, the St. Ann's A. A. football team is ready for the opening kick-off which will bring the boys into action for their twelfth season of gridiron warfare. The opening game of the season was booked for tomorrow but was called off to allow the Bristol Twilight League All-Stars and the Lower Bucks County League All-Stars baseball teams to clash on St. Ann's field. The opening game is now scheduled for October 1st, with Clover Catholic Club as the opposition.

Coach Mike DeRisi has moulded together a fine aggregation to represent the Bristol eleven this season. With most of his players from last year back, and the addition of several high school players, DeRisi has his squad almost intact. The St. Ann's line will average in the neighborhood of 175 pounds, while the backfield will scale close to 160 pounds.

Kicking, the weakness of the team, seems to be solved this season. "Joe" Agresta will be the mainstay in this position. Agresta has been booting the pigskin far and wide during the practice games and is almost certain to hold down that department during the season. When Agresta is not in the game, "Pete" Borne will do the toing of the ball with Tershon being in the reserve.

The signal barking job is being handled by Ray Peio, "Teddie" Tosti, and Joe Misera. Peio and Misera are hold-overs from last season, while Tosti finished his high school career and is now trying out for the club. Dick Seneca and Mike DeRisi will do the full-backing.

The job for center is certain to be handled by the 12-year veteran "Monk" Oriola, with Bud Tunis in reserve. Other linemen out for positions are: Angelo, Nicolls, Seneca, Tulio, Giar-di, Esposito and Mastriani.

The managers of the club are now working on the schedule and are trying to give the Saints their toughest assignments since the combination organized. Doylestown, which scored a close victory over the lads last season, is back on the schedule, and pending games are listed with Willow Grove, Cheltenham, Ambler and Sellersville.

BASEBALL FANS AWAIT ALL-STAR TILT TOMORROW

Fans of the lower end of Bucks County are anxiously waiting for the opening pitch tomorrow afternoon which will bring the Bristol Twilight League All-Stars against the Lower Bucks County League All-Stars. The largest crowd of the season is expected to be on hand to witness the fray on St. Ann's field.

It has been a question in the minds of the fandom as to which is the stronger league. The supporters of the Lower Bucks League claim that their players are all experienced and the senior circuit could not cope with them. On the other hand, the Twilight League rosters, although their players are much younger, boast that their team is faster and has a much better defense than the Bucks league. It remains to be seen which is the stronger league.

Thus far, only one player has announced that he is unable to play the game. "Gize" Dougherty, picked as the Lower Bucks County third-sacker, has an engagement with the Maple Grove football team. It is most likely that the manager of the team will place Paul Gotwald on third base and shift Harrison, of Hulmeville, to second base.

The Twilight League players have all given their consent to play and are ready for the opening pitch. "Will" Holland will start on the hill for the junior circuit, with Dave Ennis serving them for the Twilight League.

Wilmer Black will manage the Lower Bucks County League, with Dave Landreth holding the reins of the Twilight League.

The game will begin at 2:30, sharp.

This afternoon on St. Ann's field, the first game of the series between the Lower Bucks County champions, Hulmeville, and the Bristol Twilight League winners, St. Ann's, will take place. Game is scheduled to begin at 2:30 o'clock.

TULLYTOWN

Mrs. James Holton, Jersey City, N. J., has been spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Anderson.

Mrs. Frank Carlen spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. George Hitchcock, Norristown.

Misses Marion Wells and Lesta Shearer were recent visitors at Ashbury Park, N. J.

IN HARRIMAN HOSPITAL

Mrs. William H. H. Fine, Radcliffe street, is receiving treatment at Harriman Hospital.

HARRISBURG—Curfew shall not "blow" tonight and the borough of Penbrook will save $54.75 annually.

Borough officials determined that when the fire house siren sounded curfew every night it cost 15 cents, or $54.75 in one year, to inform children under 16 years of age that it was time to go home.

Hereafter, children playing on the streets of Penbrook will hear the fire bell on the fire house tolling the curfew. It makes as much noise and costs nothing to ring, borough officials aver.

BRISTOL BALL LEAGUE ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

At a meeting of the Bristol Basketball League held last night in the Odd Fellows' hall, the following officers were elected for the ensuing season: President, Thomas Juno; vice-president, Neil McDevitt; secretary and treasurer, James Dolan.

Discussion arose about the matter of the playing floor and several locations were mentioned. The one which received the most consideration was the Riverside Theatre which was the scene of many hard-fought games several years back. A committee was appointed to look into the affair and several other committees appointed to see other locations.

The teams and their representatives last night were: Knights of Columbus, Frank Craven and William Gallagher; Hibernians, Neil McDevitt and James Dolan; St. Ann's, Frank Fields and Michael DeRisi; Paterson Parchment Paper Company, John Parella and Eugene Spadaecino; Hawks, Harry Jenks and Harry Kendig; Young Men's Association, John Smoyer and Edward Mariner; Third Ward, George Herman and John Brescia; and Odd Fellows, Franklin Smith and William Hibbs.

HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN OPENS WITH U. MORELAND

By Oscar Corn

(H. S. Press Representative)

Attention! all ye football fans, the Bristol High football machine is off! Today they will meet their first real test, when they open up their football season at Willow Grove. Bristol High vs. Upper Moreland, doesn't that look like a real good old-fashioned football tussle? Well, it certainly will be just that.

With Upper Moreland having a big, strong team and the winning tradition of the season of 1932, and Bristol High with a light team that has a great deal of fight and some trick plays.

This year Bristol High has a light team, very light. The line only averages about 141 pounds while the backfield averages only about 138 pounds. The punters are only fair, as are the passers.

Today the Cardinal and Gray team will play a team which they know nothing more about than that it has a reputation to win. Upper Moreland is a new team on Bristol's schedule, therefore no one can predict the results of the game. Bristol, however, will be out there fighting, and will do their best to come out on top.

The game will start at 2:30 o'clock on the Upper Moreland High field.

WOMEN'S TENNIS FINALS TO BE PLAYED TOMORROW

The Women's Tennis Tournament is moving along rapidly and unless rain interferes, the finals match will be played on the Elks' courts tomorrow afternoon.

Thursday afternoon, Ellen Kallenbach defeated Marie Rufe, 6-3, 6-1. At the same time Emma Anthony was defeated by Phyllis Kallenbach in a hotly contested game by the score 2-6, 6-2 and 6-2.

Friday afternoon Peggie Pope met stiff opposition in her game with Louise Lawrence, but won, 6-2, 6-2. The match between Louise Lawrence and Irene Paulus resulted in a victory for the former, 6-4, 6-0. In one of the most spectacular matches of the tournament, Phyllis Kallenbach defeated Veronica Dugan, 6-8, 7-5, 6-4.

Louise Lawrence and Phyllis Kallenbach will play their semi-finals match this morning at 10:30. Mrs. Eastburn and Ellen Kallenbach will meet in the quarter-finals this afternoon at 2:30. The winner of this match will have as her opponent in the semi-finals, "Peggie" Pope. This semi-finals match will be played tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The finals are scheduled for 2:30 tomorrow afternoon.

Hilsbos Found Guilty; Re-enacts Fire Scene

Before Judge Calvin S. Boyer and at the request of District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, the defendant donned the grey overcoat bearing the scorched streaks on the back, his felt hat, found near the fire, and showed the jury and the Court just how he unlocked the door to his office, opened the door, struck a match, and attempted to place a sign in the window.

"I detected no odors but the next thing I knew I was knocked out of the office. There must have been an explosion. I was in a semi-conscious condition," said Hilsbos. "I remember seeing flames all around me, but I thought of my car. I got into it, drove to the fire house, and reported the fire."

The former realtor, who has ceased using the Parkland office since September, told the court the Parkland Association owned the ground upon which the building, which belonged to him, was located. He has been operating a restaurant since 1932.

"May I ask you what your financial condition was on May 17?" District Attorney Eastburn asked the defendant. "I wouldn't say it was extremely bad," Hilsbos answered. He denied that the telephone in his residence had been disconnected on account of lack of payment, but admitted it had been disconnected.

"I never returned to the building following the fire because some one might think I was interfering with possible evidence," Hilsbos stated. Upon questioning by the Commonwealth, he admitted saying to Trooper Felix R. Gowan "It would look bad for me to return."

Charles Doyle, hosiery worker, and a member of the South Langhorne Fire Company, testified that another fireman, Charles Mondelli, recognized the defendant when he appeared at the fire house to report the fire.

Miss Mary Adams, of Neshaminy Falls, former stenographer for the defendant when he was engaged selling real estate, told the court she helped him haul water in the cans from the well to the restaurant. She testified that Hilsbos had spoken to her concerning the cancellation of the fire policy.

Subjected to a grueling cross examination, Alvin B. Cadwallader, Oxford postmaster, told the court that maybe he did and maybe he didn't say that Hilsbos was a "bootlegger and ought to be in jail a million years."

It was revealed that State Police-men had interrogated the Postmaster about the reputation of the defendant. He said he could not remember whether he made the assertion, but probably he did. "Hilsbos had a good many enemies," said Cadwallader.

Englebert Hops, Frankford oil distributor, admitted selling oil to the defendant on the day of the fire.

Numerous side-bar conferences occurred during Thursday afternoon.

In order to finish up the trial yesterday court convened at 9:30 o'clock.

With Charles Kennelly, 28, a salesman, a witness for the defendant, on the stand, the trial was resumed. Kennelly testified Hilsbos came to his place on May 16 to collect rent.

William A. Bottoms, another witness, told the court the defendant was at his house the same evening.

Other witnesses included Elizabeth Berkley, Howard Shields and Mrs. Mary Adams, who stated Fire Marshal

Stackhouse and Trooper Gowan came to her restaurant and asked what kind of fuel she used to heat the place. "I used kerosene to heat my place and it came in tin cans."

The witness denied learning of the fire from the officers who searched her premises.

Mrs. Julia Hilsbos, 30, wife of the defendant, of Neshaminy Falls, took the stand at 11:30.

"I was up—the fire siren awakened me—when my husband came into the house. He was dazed, his overcoat was covered with glass and hairs. I advised him to see a doctor. He only stayed in the house about 2 minutes," she said.

"Look what happened to me. I have been framed," the defendant is alleged to have said when he burst into the house, according to his wife.

"I believe he knew what he was talking about," Mrs. Hilsbos said.

How Morrisville Voters Cast Their Ballots

In Morrisville Borough the Democratic slate vote resulted as follows: School director, six years, John Mara, 66; William Temple, 69; Raymond Clemens, 70.

Democratic nominees for council are: First Ward, Ellis Tettemer, 13 votes; Second Ward, Herbert LaRue, 15 votes; Third Ward, Leland Godwin, 23 votes, and Fourth Ward, William Provost, 22 votes.

In the Yardley primary poll the vote was similar to that in Morrisville, the Republicans doing the heavy voting.

For the office of burgess on the Republican ticket, Chester Witzstein, with 148 votes, won the nomination unopposed. Likewise, on the Democratic slate the burgess nomination was not contested, and Christian A. Seiter was named with 22 ballots.

A contest for the town council berths developed in the Republican side of the ballot, and Richard J. Horwell, with a margin of 20 votes, won the nomination from Walter L. Delleplane. Horwell received 123 votes to 103 for his opponent.

Nominated for school director on the Republican setup were: Frances B. Barnett, two-year term, 143 votes; James E. Groome, 132 votes, and Helen R. Thompson, 138 votes. The latter two were named for the six-year term.

Other Republican nominees for town council are: David H. Anderson, 139 votes; Robert Barbour, 131 votes, and Lewis M. Pickel, 130 votes.

For the same position, the Democrats named Joseph McKenna, 20 votes; A. J. Neely, 18 votes; Albert Delleplane, 19 votes, and William Kelly, Jr., 18 votes.

Samuel Utz, Frank B. Barrett and Marcus B. Ketchum were nominated as the Democratic candidates for the positions of school directors.

Spencer Parks and James J. Colson, with 23 and 155 votes, were named as Democratic and Republican candidates respectively for the post of auditor.

George W. Cadwallader won the Republican nomination for tax collector from Fred W. Beans. Cadwallader polled 98 votes to 78 for Beans.

Beantown's Belting Beauty

By BURNLEY

THAT boy who wears the hat with a feather in it in the vicinity of Boston—Beantown to the rabble—is Wally Berger, the slugging center fielder of the Braves, whose work with the willow has kept visiting pitchers weeping all season.

Indeed, the Braves have come up in the world in a manner that has the experts gasping. And while there is a good deal of mystery in the matter of how they do it, Wally's habit of smacking the ball far and wide is no ghost story.

Berger is rated now as the greatest right-handed slugger since Hornsby, and he seems destined to give Chuck Klein a close run for home run honors before the season is over. What's more, he gets added credit for every ball he whales over the fence in Boston, since the fences there are constructed so far from the plate that stage coaches cover the distance only by changing horses twice.

As far as Berger's work in the middle garden district is concerned, no less an authority than Bill McKenchie says that his slugger is the best center fielder in the league. He is fast, and gets going as the ball is hit—and that's all anyone could ask.

The fans have taken Wally to their hearts—and why shouldn't they. He is the hero of the town, and when he walks up to the plate the customers let loose with all they've got.

It is time to compare the Boston Braves with the well-known champion Braves of 1914, and there are several points in which the teams are similar. In Berger, the Braves of today have the Joe Connolly of the 1914 team—and he was the only 300 hitter the champions then had. Wally and Randy More are the only high average hitters of the present Braves, with Wally far out in front.

Whatever happens to the Braves in this annum's pennant pursuit, Berger will emerge as the hero, and he deserves all the credit that comes his way.

It is our bet that Wally will continue to give the fans plenty to cheer about before the season is over.
